

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

TUESDAY EVE., JANUARY 23, 1883.

ROSSER & MCCARTHY,
PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

The freezing snap of yesterday,
Sent by the weather clerk
To harden up the muddy streets,
Was pretty clever work.
And now he sends the driving snow,
In steady volume down,
To give a finished air to all
By whitening the town.

THERE is a good supply of coal in town.

Coal sells for 15 cents a bushel at Lexington.

The river rose over twelve inches last night.

A STRIKE is reported to be imminent among the operatives in the shoe manufacturing at Cincinnati.

The tow-boat J. N. Phillips was cut down by the ice near Pittsburg, Sunday. The officers and crew escaped.

The last speech in the turnpike suit was made to-day by Mr. Kennedy, of Carlisle. The jury will take the case this afternoon.

The meeting at the Baptist Church was well attended last night, considering the cold weather. All are invited to attend this evening at 7 o'clock.

A RISE of eleven feet is reported at Pittsburg with the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers still coming up. A large lot of coal will be shipped as soon as the ice runs out.

"COL." CRAWFORD, who killed Pent Lyons several weeks ago, is said to have been seen recently on Kinniconick Creek, Lewis county, on his way to the mountains.

THE Morning Mail hereafter will leave Cincinnati at 4:30 o'clock a. m. Returning she will leave Maysville at 1 o'clock p. m. This arrangement will enable the Morning Mail to make connection with the afternoon trains and the omnibuses.

C. H. COOPER will for the next sixty days offer his entire stock of dry goods at cost for cash. The stock embraces everything in the dry goods line and will be sold without reserve on the terms named. The ladies, especially, are invited to call and inspect the stock. See announcement elsewhere.

A DESPATCH from Louisville to the Cincinnati Times-Star says:

The Commercial's special report a bitter feeling in Carter and Breathitt counties against the State troops, growing out of the defeat of the mob with sixteen deaths, at Ashland, when Neal and Craft, the murderers, were being tried last month. The two men are to be put on trial in Carter county, on February 2nd, and it is reported the people up there are arming themselves, and threaten death to any militia the Governor sends to protect the murderers.

The Governor will probably order out 500 men to protect the prisoners. The county is very wild and remote, and the mountaineers are a determined and courageous class. There is only one railroad, and this passes through many tunnels and ravines. Grave apprehensions of a regular war are entertained.

Baggage and Parcel Delivery.

Mr. Henry Green, of the Kentucky Central Railway, lately bought at Lexington a handsome new express wagon which will be used in this city for the transfer of baggage and freight from the train and river and for the delivery of parcels throughout the town. The prices charged will be from ten to twenty-five cents, according to the size of the articles carried. Mr. W. Joe Ray, one of the best drivers in the city, will have charge of the business. Orders left at C. W. Bierley's confectionery store will be promptly attended to.

Baird's Minstrels.

This troupe which numbers thirty-five performers, among them a number of well known artists, will appear at the Opera House next Friday evening. We select from a large number of press notices the following from the Boston Herald of a late date:

A crowded house and a fine entertainment marked the opening of the Windsor Theatre, under its new management last evening. Baird's Mammoth Minstrels formed the attraction of the stage, and did ample justice to themselves and the occasion, and presenting a programme of a high order of excellence and particularly noticeable for its originality and refinement. In the first part the choicest vocal and instrumental selections were rendered with harmony and artistic taste by a well trained septet, assisted by a juvenile chorus and a fine orchestra, as a foil to which a succession of comic ditties and witty sallies were contributed by eight endmen, foremost of whom were Billy McAllister and Ned West. A long and attractive olio introduced brilliantly executed trombone solos by Nathaniel Carl; Pharaoh, the electric man, who is indeed a prince of contortionists; Ace Leroy, one of the best female impersonators in the burnt cork field; Ripley and Reade, the well known and expert musical team; Ned West in a ludicrous specialty; Billy McAllister in a bone solo; the Royal Hand-bellringers, who sing extremely well to their own accompaniments; the Midget Four, who dance on each other's heads in the most nonchalant manner; the Four Invincibles in offerings of Ethiopian song; and a strong corps of song and dance and clog performers. "The Banker's Wife," which concluded the entertainment, is a laughable farce, of which McAllister is the chief light. This bill will be repeated during the week nightly, and at Wednesday and Saturday matinees. Managers Lothrop and Baird are alike to be congratulated—the former upon the enthusiastic reception accorded the first attraction which he presents at his south-end playhouse, and the latter upon the merits of that attraction.

Miss Hattie Key, the reigning belle of our neighborhood, has returned from a visit to Fleming county. She has seen Hub.

Mr. Harvard Farrow is talking of making a quarter mile track for training horses. He has employed Mr. Walter Goodman to do his training.

A mouse has made its home in an organ in this neighborhood. How will I get it out? is the anxious inquiry of the young lady. We would suggest putting a hungry cat in.

A lady remarked the other day when her son-in-law came home in a sort of how come you so way, that she wished her daughter was in Heaven. Madam, he replied, if she was you would never get to see her.

Mr. Jack Mason gave his nephew, John Mason and his lovely bride an entertainment last week. They could spend only one day, as Mrs. Kerr, the mother of the bride, was much indisposed. May peace and plenty follow them all their days.

Quite a commotion was created in our little school by one of the scholars leaving before school was out and fastening the door on the outside. Luckily a window pane was out (or rather a board was not nailed over it) and a little urchin got through and released the prisoners. The offending young gentleman spent his play time in the school house next day.

Mr. James Anno was the recipient of a box of Florida fruit, among which were oranges, lemons, grapes, pine apples, citrons and several other varieties. They were the largest and finest ever seen in our enterprising town. Mr. J. H. Wallingford, through the kindness of Mr. Anno, was a sharer of some of the fruit. Mr. Anno's son, living in Jacksonville, Florida, was the donor. The shade is one good turn deserves another, so, Mr. Anno, do so again.

A mite society met at Wm. Browning's Thursday night. We did not attend, but "our imagination informs us" that they had a pleasant time.

Robert Brookins started for his home in sunny Kansas Monday. He enjoyed his visit among relatives very much, but does not like Kentucky.

On North Fork's muddy banks we stand
And cast our "other" eye,
To Tom Worthington's lofty land,
That points toward the sky.

We cannot get the boss chess players to play a deciding game. J. H. Wright holds the doctor level and says he gave him "two best out of three" Saturday, and thus it stands.

Misses Lena Fleming and Minnie Pollitt, accompanied by Messrs. Condit Stevenson and John Fleming, went to Reeterville Saturday evening to spend the Sabbath. The young folks seem to like Reeterville very much.

A gentleman of color, claiming to be a preacher, and who travels under the title of Rev. Mullen, stopped with Aaron Goff two days last week. After so long a time Goff found out that he was a tramp and turned him loose.

One of the most enjoyable evenings we have passed lately was at the pique party at the residence of Mr. Alex. McCarthy, Friday evening, in memory of the birthday of his eldest daughter, Miss Fannie, she having reached that milestone of life's journey the day named. A bountiful repast was spread and heartily enjoyed by about seventy-five hungry people. The guests remained until a late hour, enjoying themselves in various ways, and left with the hope that they should be permitted in one year hence to again pass as pleasant an evening at "her" home.

"M. E. P." of Mt. Glead, thinks we are very "ungallant to insinuate" that the reason there have been so few marriages in this community is because the young men do not want to marry. We did not mean to insinuate at all, but made the few remarks from personal observation. The men have not given us their side of the question, but think they are perfectly satisfied to "wait a bit." No doubt that is what worries "M. E. P." to think that the men want to wait so long, and be so very slow at proposing. Some people, no matter what sex, after years have rolled around and they begin to get rather ancient get scared, and think their time is up; then they take a new start, and it is not long till they are so anxious to marry that they do not know what is the matter with them. Whether the BULLETIN'S worthy "peppit shover" of Glead is one of this class or not we do not know, but "the shoe fit" and was put on. "M. E. P." also reminds us of the proverb that says "wait till you hear the other side." That is just the part of the programme that would tickle us. Give us the other side, by all means, relate to us your reason why it is thusly, "Is there no balm in Gilead?" If not, come down into our midst, where the weary never tire of "waiting" and the aged and disappointed rest in peace. Come! and we will welcome you with
ONE EYE OPEN.

For and About Women.

A girl employed as a spinner in a Lowell mill has taken the first prize offered by the Boston Musical Society for the best criticism of vocal and instrumental music.

The title "lady" is derived from the Saxon bleafian, contracted into lafy, and then into lady. Laf, or hlaf, or loaf, means food or bread, and dian means to serve, so that the title "lady" means bread-server. The feudal lord supplied the food for the guests, or the poor, and the ladies used to carve and distribute it.

"A woman's tongue is her sword, and she does not let it rust," said the proverb. "A woman's tongue is her sword, and she does not let it rest," set up the type setter. There are some type-setters who have been married so long that they don't care how inelegantly a domestic proverb may be shaped.
